

GIRL ACQUITTED BY JURY TODAY

CAMBRIDGE MURDER TRIAL ENDS WITH PRISONER BEING FREED.

VERDICT MEETS APPROVAL

Hattie Le Blanc Has Been Locked Up For Over A Year—Is But Seventeen.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 14.—The fate of Hattie Le Blanc, the little Canadian girl charged with the murder of Clarence Glover, went into hands of the jury at 9:45 today and an hour later brought in a verdict of acquitted.

Hattie Le Blanc, a pretty French-
Canadian, looking younger than her 17 years, was tried in East Cambridge for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, president of a laundry company in Waltham.

The girl had been employed as a domestic in Glover's home. On the night of Nov. 29, 1909, Glover was found dying of a bullet wound on the steps of Dr. W. W. Connel's hospital in Waltham. He died while the doctors were probing for the bullet, after saying he and Miss Le Blanc had been conversing pleasantly in the laundry, when the girl suddenly seized his revolver from the desk and shot him, firing two more shots as he fled. Then he said he seized the revolver and crawled a quarter of a mile to the hospital, throwing the revolver over a fence.

The revolver was found, but only one chamber was empty. More than one bullet was found in Glover's body.

Hattie Le Blanc disappeared. Three months after Glover's death she was found under his bed at his home. She said she had met Glover at the laundry by appointment and he attacked her and she fled, hiding 72 hours. She said Glover had a revolver, but that she had not touched it and supposed he shot himself. Her reason for hid-

Gen. Navarro to a standstill, although inferior in numbers. All told, seventy-four persons are known to have been killed. The battle is not considered decisive in its results and today the two forces are within sight of each other. Navarro took no prisoners—it is contrary to his orders—and in his camp today there are no wounded of either side. The revolutionists had completed the work of the bullets.

MANAGERS OF BIG LEAGUES TO STAY

Switch In the Building Hand Of St.
Louis Americans Is the Only Sure Prospect.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Dec. 14.—One of the interesting subjects of comment at the big gathering of baseball men here today has been that relating to changes among the managers of the big league teams for the coming session. The discussion has brought to light the fact that the managerial changes will be fewer in number than in any preceding year in the history of the major organizations.

As matters stand at present there will be only one new major league manager in the field when the curtain rises in April next for the season of 1911. The only certain switch will be made in the makeup of the St. Louis Americans, from whose management
Jack O'Connor was disposed last fall.
The only other change that is at all likely is in the Boston Nationals.

Paul Lake is signed up for another year, it is understood, but with a change in the club ownership it is possible that another man may be selected to pilot the team next season.
The number of changes among the managers is small as compared with the records of former years. During the past eight years no less than fifty-five men have managed clubs in the National and American leagues, the Nationals having had twenty-six and the Americans twenty-nine. Some of these men have drifted from one club to another in the same circuit, and have occasionally transferred their operations to the other league.

Patsy Donovan, who will again lead the Boston Americans, has had experience with the Pittsburgh and St.
Louis Nationals, Washington Americans and with Brooklyn. Ned Hanlon, yesterday held the reins over Baltimore
Brooklyn and Cincinnati and Clark Griffith won a pennant for Chicago
then tried to win for the New York Americans before landing a berth with Cincinnati.

Joe Kelly of Toronto guided the Cincinnati team, dropped back into the Eastern, and jumped out again into the National at the helm of the Indianapolis club. Hugh Duffy went from Milwaukee in 1903 to the Philadelphia Nationals, and in 1907 drifted into the Eastern league at the head of the Providence club, passing up to his league ranks two years ago as the manager of the Chicago Americans.
William Armour, now president of the Toledo club in the American Association, led Cleveland and Detroit teams in the period named, while Jim Mc-Guire coached the Boston Americans for a time, and later went to Cleveland. The clubs with the various managers in the past eight years follow:

National league: New York, John
McGraw; Cincinnati, Joe Kelly; Ned
Hanlon; John Gansel; Clark Griffith;
St. Louis, Patsy Donovan; Charles Nichols; Jimmy Burke; John McClo-se; Roger Bresnahan; Pittsburgh, Fred

mer; Hugh Duffy; Billy Murray;

berger; Fred Tenney; Joe Kelly;

Dahlen.

lings; Hal Chase; Philadelphia, Connie Mack; St. Louis, Jim McAlleer;

mour; Nap Lajoie; James McGuire;

ing Jones; Billy Sullivan; Hughes Duffy;

CEMENT SHOW OPENS IN NEW YORK CITY

Famous Edison Poured Cement House Is A Feature Of The Big Exhibition.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Dec. 14.—The growth of the cement industry in the United States and the wide variety of purposes for which cement products are now used are comprehensively illustrated in the big cement show which opened in Madison Square Garden today. The show is given under the ausices of the American Association of Portland Cement Manufacturers, whose annual convention is now in session here. The exhibit that attracted most attention from the crowd that attended the opening this afternoon was the famed Edison poured cement house, a commodious one-family structure of eight rooms, which the inventor claims can be built at a cost of $1,200. The outside and interior walls, the roof, floors, stairs and all of the exterior ornamentation are of reinforced concrete. The exhibit was set up under the personal supervision of Mr. Edison.

FIGHT ON RULES IS AGAIN BROUGHT UP

Lower House Hears More Arguments
On This Subject During Today's Session.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—The renewal of the fight on the rules which signaled the past session was precipitated today by representatives Hughes of New Jersey, who raised a point whether a bill considered in the regular order last calendar Wednesday could be taken up again today.
The discussion continued an hour and Speaker Cannon ruled, there was no precedent exactly fitting the situation, but the house should not be deprived of doing what it desired.
Therefore he ruled, the house could settle for itself whether it would proceed to consider the bill. By vote of 146 to 51 the house decided to take up the measure.

Pinchot's Statement.
Declaring the "majority report" of the Ballinger investigating committee, while supporting Ballinger, gave vicious support to the policy which Ballinger had opposed and in fact justified the Pinchot policy of conservation. Clifford Pinchot made his first comment on the verdict. "The people long ago decided that the minority report, concerning Ballinger, was right," Pinchot declared. "It is now up to the various congressmen," he said, "to show where they stand by their votes on the adoption of the reports."

A FICKLE AUDIENCE IS EASILY PLEASED

"A Winning Miss" Attracted Good Sized Audience At Myers Theatre Last Evening.

With nothing to really recommend it to the public beyond the pretty scenic effects, clever dancing, a few catchy songs and liberal advertising "A Winning Miss" held the boards at the Myers theatre last evening. There were some funny tunes, some good songs but the whole attraction was more of the slap stick order of comedy than the usual type of musical productions that are heralded as was this. Max Bloom as J. Harrington Hann was fairly clever and Miss Hattie De Van as Annastasia May, made a good foil for the play of the principal. Clarence Jackson as John Speed had a good baritone voice did not have a good opportunity of demonstrating and J. E. Cogman as Capt. Mike McGinty, also deserves some credit for his work in the comedy part. Lorenzo Lester as Willie Waters, however fell far short of what was to be expected of the ingenue, who lacked a good voice and while his dancing was clever it had the same old through. The audience however appeared pleased with the efforts of the company and applauded liberally.

ANNOYING FRUITS OF FAME

Bachelor Maid Who Wrote Successful Novel Is Bombarded With Advancements of Cigars and Liquors.

The bachelor maid whose first novel had made something of a hit held up a handful of cigarets.

"All these came in the first mail this morning," she said in a tone of exasperation. "Here's one offering me a choice brand of cigars; another is a card of well-known whiskey. This one advises me to drink stout—weigh a hundred and sixty pounds now—and here is one urging me to sustain my faltering strength on a fancy grade of cod liver oil. These are only a few of the hundreds I receive. I never received such mail until about a year ago. I suppose I deserve it. I know how it came about. After my book appeared and had some press notice I was approached by the representatives of a social directory to insert my name and address, together with a brief but cogent history of my brilliant career. Of course I was flattered immediately and yielded at once to the intoxication of this first draught of fame. I gave him all the information he asked—except my age, of course—and signed a contract to buy a copy of the directory when it should appear. I can't see that I ever got a penny's worth of good out of it, but I have been buried under whisky advertisements and others of like sort. My name is a distinctively feminine one, but I suppose advertisers think all writers are Bohemians. I wish I never had heard of that social directory."

Red Tape Officialdom.

"In all ages there have been examples of heroes and great men who, wishing to be faithful in small things, have blundered in matters of the greatest importance." This sentence is taken from one of the five articles of naval faith read every Sunday to Japanese men-of-war crews. It sums up in a very few words the blinding sin of red tape officialdom, that besetting of traditional rules and regulations which when confronted with a great emergency, such as the outbreak of disease before Sevastopol, breaks down hopelessly, and, in the words of the Japanese document, brings "calamity, death and lasting dishonor" upon itself.—London Evening Standard.

Progress in the Latest Guise.

Speaking of progress, according to James Ends How, a prominent citizen of St. Louis, the knight of the road is about to demand his share of the general advancement and progress of the human race. A committee of the "unemployed" at the instigation of How is preparing to wait upon a general committee representing various railroads, when they will demand that the worthy tramp who says he is going in search of work be permitted to ride in passenger coaches free of charge instead of being relegated to the rods and bumpers. What an Elysium this world would be for the weary one! Yet some folks say that all our progress is heartless, cold and practical.

Real Meaning of "Bonus."

"Bonus" ought to be "bonum," since it is evidently intended to mean "a good thing," and therefore should be neuter, not masculine. The word is found as early as 1773, but no one knows who was the ignorant or willful slinger against Latin that introduced it, though conjecture assigns it to the London stock exchange.

Utterly Wretched

Nervous Prostration Long Endured Before Remedy Was Found.

Miss Minerva Reminger, Upper Bern, Pa., writes: "For several years I had nervous prostration, and was utterly wretched. I lived on bread and beef tea because my stomach would not retain anything else. I took many remedies, but obtained no relief until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, when I began to gain at once. Am now cured."

Pure, rich blood makes good, strong nerves, and this is why Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and enriches the blood, cures so many nervous diseases. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

MINERS KILLED BY 'FALL'

One Seriously Hurt in Cave-In in Pennsylvania Colliery.

Numbers of Other Men Have Narrow Escapes from Death in Great Fall of Slate from Roof.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 14.—A cave-in of coal and rock in the Clark vein of the Cayuga mine here, led to the death of three men, the injury of another, and resulted in hair breadth escapes of a number of others. The cave-in occurred in a chamber being worked by Charles Plebner, miner, and Charles Roela, laborer. While these men were busy engaged they were interrupted by four visitors employed in another part of the mine.

Plebner and Roela were drilling a hole and saw signs of the cave-in in time to leap back and escape the great mass from the roof. The other four were caught. Tony Pominski was at the edge of the fall and suffered a badly contused back and head. The other three, who were known only by number, were crushed under the fall and the life was crushed out of them.

MINE EXPLOSION KILLS TWO

Electric Battery Ignites Explosive and Men Are Blown to Atoms.

Charleroi, Pa., Dec. 14.—Two men were killed by a premature explosion in the mine of the Charleroi coal works here. The dead are Job Williams, 30, driver in the coal mine, and Angelo Bernardo, 30, shot firer, both of this place.

Bernardo had attempted to fire a charge, but his electric batteries had failed to work. It is supposed that while he was testing his cable a spark in some manner reached the explosive. Bernardo was blown to atoms, while Williams, who was standing about twenty feet from the explosive, was hurled against the mine and instantly killed.

North Pole Medals Placed in the National Museum.

Flags the Arctic Explorer Carried on Long Trip North Are Also Presented to Institution.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Civil Engineer Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, has deposited in the national museum the series of sixteen gold and two silver medals which have been awarded to him. The medals especially the great gold medal of the National Geographic Society of Washington, presented to him for his "discovery of the north pole," and the great gold medal of the British Geographical Society of London, designed by Mrs. Scott, wife of the leader of the British south polar expedition, and presented to Capt. Peary for "Arctic exploration, 1886-1900."

He has also presented to the museum the flag of his college fraternity, which was presented to him by his brothers of the Delta Kappa Epsilon, and the peace flag, which was presented to him by the ladies of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Both of these flags he carried with him to the north pole.

Her new husband is F. M. Reynolds, a musician formerly attached to a musical comedy company, whom she married at Seattle.

THOUGHT AN ATTEMPT HAD BEEN MADE ON HIS LIFE

Laborer at New Yards Much Frightened by Explosion of Electric Light Bulb.

Wilbur Hanson at the new yards, known as "Waupaca Hank," because his home is in that city, was the victim of a practical joke perpetrated on him by fellow workmen last night in which he thought someone was making an attempt on his life. Hanson was returning from work last night shortly after six to his room in the European hotel. Behind him in a short distance were two other workmen at the roundhouse, one of whom had a burning incandescent light bulb in his pocket. As Hanson was passing along the side of the Sheridan hotel, the man with the electric light bulb crept up behind Hanson and threw it down on the sidewalk and yelled at the same time. The bulb burst with a loud explosion and no frightened Hanson that he did not stop to look around to see what had happened, but started up at full speed, ran around the corner of North La Salle and Wall streets and dashed into the hotel. His version of the occurrence, related this morning, was that someone had cast a paving brick or a beer bottle out of a window in the hotel at him.

BUSY TIMES ON C. & N. W. ROAD THE PAST FEW DAYS

About Forty Extra Trains Besides Usual Large Number of Freight Trains Have Been Run Out of Here.

The past four days at the new yards have been busy ones for switchmen and trainmen. In the past three days thirty-two freight trains have been made up at the new yards and in the downtown yards and sent out from here. Sunday was the busiest day, with thirteen extra, Monday next with twelve, and yesterday seven extra trains were run. With the amount of shipping handled today it is expected the number will come up to or exceed forty.

Firemen Recover Pet.

The pet cat belonging to the Kingsland firemen has been found and restored to its owners. The animal had been in the habit of going out to streak on the escapes and was lost at St. Kensington a fortnight ago. Recently it was seen at Kingsland, and being recognized by its collar studded with firemen's buttons, was taken to the nearest fire station and thence sent to Kingsland. They have a similarly intelligent cat at the general post office, Paris. He gets into the mail cart and accompanies the bags to the station and takes frequent long journeys in the mail van. Recently, however, he was sealed up in a mail bag and got as far as Marseilles.—London Globe.

DELIRIOUS MAN NEAR DEATH

Escapes from Hospital and Ran Through Streets in Night Clothes.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 14.—While fleeing from a wound caused by a revolver bullet, Charles Sears escaped from the Hazleton hospital and with the thermometer stuck to zero, ran through the streets attired only in night clothes to his home a mile away. His son heard him at the door, his home and reached him as he fell unconscious. His fingers and toes were frozen, and he is now in a critical condition and not expected to recover.

HANDED DOWN FROM EVE

Dread of Snakes is Almost Universal and Must Date Back to the Cradle of the Race.

Not for five and probably not for 10,000 years has any ancestor of ours lived in a country or zone which was inhabited by a single dangerous, venomous serpent or a snake of any kind big enough to kill a jack-rabbit, yet the dread of serpents is as vivid as it was in the days of the Garden of Eden, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in an article on the dread of cats, snakes and mice in Success Magazine. Their baleful, unthinking eyes, their straggling coils, the ghastly slowness of their movements, the noiselessness of their approach, the agony and deathliness of their sting, throbs and echo like a Wagnerian leit-motif through all literature and legend; are bitten and branded into our deepest consciousness as if by fire. An imitation of their hissing, their slithering, their crawling, their slithering through all literature and legend; are bitten and branded into our deepest consciousness as if by fire. An imitation of their hissing, their slithering, their crawling, their slithering through all literature and legend; are bitten and branded into our deepest consciousness as if by fire.

The aversion to snakes has no appreciable present utility, for the risk of any modern American or European being killed by snake-bite, even in the most rattlesnake-infested and prohibition-ridden country, is about one-thirtieth of that of death by lightning stroke. It must date back to at least the cradle of the race in the tropics, but even here its distribution is a singular one. Of all animals above the size of a squirrel, one two display it in any vivid or paralyzing form. It is an echo of the days when our common ancestor, "tallied, covered with hair and probably arboreal in its habits," swung and relicked in the tree tops.

Aviator Cord and Wire.

The arrival of the aeroplane has given us a new industry, or rather a modification of an old one—namely, that of manufacturing aviator cord and aviator wire. The manufacturers have devised a special kind of wire aviator cord to be used for stays on aeroplanes. The cord consists of a number of fine wires of great strength stranded together. The strength of the different sizes runs approximately from 2,000 to 2,500 pounds. For steering gear, a more flexible cord is provided, composed of six strands of seven wires each, with a center of either cotton or wire. The aviator wire differs from aviator cord in that it consists of a single wire instead of a number of wires twisted together. The wire is made in 12 sizes, with a breaking strength that varies from 2,000 pounds to 175.—Scientific American.

However, Mr. Myers has closed a contract with them and they will again be welcome visitors.

Dainty LacesCarefully Cleaned

Ordinarily, people fear to send their soiled laces to cleaners. So, rare and beautiful laces remain unused and unenjoyed. One can hardly blame them for not wanting to send them to some cleaner.

We base these facts on what our customers have told us. So we set to work to perfect a method to skillfully clean laces. And we succeeded. We ask you to find out for yourself by giving us a trial order.

Rev. Williams Leader: The subject for the January meeting of the "Twilight Club" is "A Night with Literature." Rev. T. D. Williams has been chosen leader.

OSCAR D. ROWE DIED EARLY THIS MORNING

One Of Janesville's Prominent Citizens Passes To The World Beyond.

Oscar D. Rowe died at his home on Fifth Avenue at four o'clock this morning. He had been in failing health for a number of years, and for the past six months the fight for life taxed every nerve and while able to be on the street occasionally it was evident to his friends that nature could not long endure the strain.

Mr. Rowe was born in Clara Potter Co., Pa., July 4, 1847. His boyhood was spent at Palmyra, Wis., and when about 15 years old he entered the office of Wm. H. Strong, station agent of the C. & St. P. railroad in this city and continued in employ of the road until 1881, when he came to Janesville and engaged in the tobacco business.

Mr. Rowe was married to Miss Gertrude McDougall, daughter of Alfred McDougall of this city. Four children blessed the union and are still living. Jennie L., Clarence W., Emma W., and Leahetta, the widow, a brother Henry S. and a sister Mrs. Russell also survive.

Mr. Rowe was Registrar of Deeds for 8 years and served the city one term as mayor. Whatever he possessed by way of ability was due to his own exertions. He was a self made man of the type which are a credit to the best citizenship.

The friendship of Oscar Rowe was an asset, which was highly prized by every man who enjoyed it. He was a kind hearted, whole souled man, free from conceit or deceit, possessing a sense of fairness and honesty which left its impress because so unassuming.

He was a lover of nature and of field sports, and his cottage at Lake Koshongong, where he delighted to entertain his friends, was the home where he found rare pleasure.

In the closer relations of life, he was an ideal husband and father, and the wealth of love bestowed upon the home was like a ray of perpetual sunshine.

Professing little, but possessing much, he lived his life and passed on, and the generation which journeyed with him is better because of his companionship.

The funeral will be held at the home on Fifth Avenue at one o'clock Friday afternoon, and interment will be made in the family lot at Edgerton.

William Cox.

William Cox, an old and much respected resident of this city, passed away this morning at 7:15 o'clock at his home, 413 South bluff street, following an illness of about six months. He was born in Athlone, Ireland, Aug. 15, 1829 and came to Janesville in 1855. He has since resided here, working for many years at his trade of mason. About twelve years ago, however, he retired from active life. Besides a wife he leaves to mourn his loss six children, four daughters and two sons. They are: Miss Catherine Cox, (Mrs. N. Y.); Mrs. Stephen Welch, Mrs. E. A. Roselling, and Miss Anna Cox, all of this city; and Frank J. Cox of Phoenix, Ariz., and Charles E. Cox of this city. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

LARGE AUDIENCES GREET REVIVALIST

Rev. O. E. Williams is Conducting a Series of Interesting Revival Meetings at the U. B. Church.

Rev. O. E. Williams of Jamestown, N. Y., is attracting large congregations every evening at the revival meetings which are being held at the United Brethren church. His addresses are characterized by clear-cut, straightforward appeals which go direct to the heart. The singing of A. E. Laraway, assisted by a large chorus choir, adds an attractive feature of these interesting meetings.

"Life's Record Revealed" was the subject of the sermon last evening. The evangelist stated that it was a prevalent practice among the men of today, to cover up the evil and wrongdoing which had characterized their lives, resorting oftentimes to subterfuge and deception and in natural course the part of the hypocrite before the world. But at some future day life's record will be revealed and from the sources of our own memories, the memories of our own children, and the divine records, the truth will come.

Meetings are held for Christians and church members at three o'clock every afternoon and are proving a source of great helpfulness to all who attend. At seven o'clock a school for personal workers is held and at 7:30 comes the gospel service. A number of conversions have been reported and the sermons are the source of much inspiration to all who go to hear them.

XV.—Germs In the Home

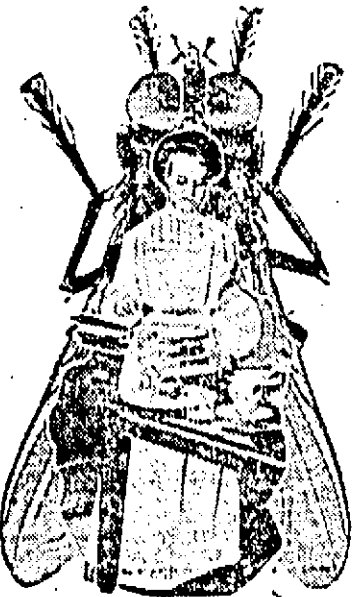

By EUGENE L. FISK, M. D.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

THERMOPHRO "good germs" and "bad germs," just as there are "good trusts" and "bad trusts." "Good germs" are those which respectably resemble "trust busting." Publicity and the light of day are supposed to be corrective for bad trusts. Sunshine and fresh air will unquestionably restrain the activities of bad germs.

An example of a good germ is the lactic acid bacillus found in sour milk. Tablets containing these germs are now used in medicine for the treatment of intestinal trouble. It has been found that they destroy certain harmful bacteria that flourish in the intestine. In fact, the "mixer of life" in the form of artificially soured milk may now be purchased at soda fountains, but whether it is a real elixir and actually prolongs life by killing off the bacteria that produce old age has not been fully proved upon by science. However, these lactic acid bacilli are quite useful and are also employed in the treatment of infective processes in the nose and mouth.

Diseases Due to Germs.

It is not so long ago—only about fifty years—that learned men were willing to debate about "spontaneous generation." It was contended that the microscopic organisms that were found in certain fermenting and decomposing fluids were "spontaneously" generated.

HOUSEWIFE AND HOUSEFLY.
"She prepared a table for me in the presence of mine enemy."
generated in the medium where they were found—in fact, like Topsy, they "just grooved."

Germs to Be Feared in the Home.
In the first place, germs should not be feared—a paradox, if you please. Respect them, but do not fear them. A "sound mind in a sound body" is not an easy mark for germs. But germs are power to injure those whose resistance is temporarily lowered by fatigue, exposure or disease as well as the naturally feeble and non-resistant.

There are principal germs that we have to contend with in the home are scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria, whooping cough, smallpox, cholera, grip, pneumonia, tuberculosis, dysentery, typhoid fever and malaria. No doubt the time will come when these maladies will practically disappear from civilized communities, as indeed many almost be said at the present time of smallpox. But earnest and faithful work by medical men and cheerful co-operation by the public are necessary to attain that end.

It is better to prevent germs from breeding and multiplying than to destroy them; also it is better to be germ proof yourself than to rely overmuch on expensive methods of destroying them. It is fortunate that fresh air and sunlight are health giving influences for humanity and death dealing influences for germs. Darkness, dampness, discoloration and dirt all favor the growth of bacteria and also lower the resistance of the human body to their action.

Influence of Flies, Mosquitoes, Etc.
It was formerly supposed that flies were useful scavengers and harmful only from the annoyance they caused buzzing around one's ears. The great discovery has been made that, like many other destructive agents we have entertained in our homes for thousands of years, the housefly is a hereditary enemy. He does not wipe his feet before entering the house, but often uses our food as a doormat. He keeps his company, breeds in filth, manure, moldy paper, garbage, anything that rots, and typhoid fever germs are his specialty.

The housefly must go, just as the old oaken bucket in the barnyard has gone due to age, and the clean, stuffy, unventilated bedroom and other long uninhabited or crowded conditions that invite poverty, crime, disease and death. But how shall we exterminate this pest, who doesn't believe in race suicide? First, destroy his breeding ground. Burn up all paper or rubbish around your farm or Truly Ethereal.

As a New York man came from under an anesthetic, he exclaimed, "This is heaven." Curious, the effect often has on a chap.

dooryard. Burn or bury all garbage or refuse. Keep your stable floors clean and wash them occasionally with hot soap and water (one ounce common soda to twelve quarts soft soap and water). Manure heaps or vaults should be disinfected with powdered chloride of lime.

Flies find a splendid breeding ground in a stable. Sewage vaults should be cleaned frequently and disinfected and protected from flies by chloride of lime or milk of lime. A fifty piper is also a fine breeding place for flies. Pigeons should be so built that they may be flushed out and cleaned. The manure is a valuable fertilizer and may be stored, but should be covered with dry earth, chloride of lime or crude oil.

The task of keeping flies out of the house is a difficult one. Screens and fly baiter, fly paper, etc., only irritate the beast. The rational method is to prevent breeding.

The mosquito does not carry the germ of malaria on his feet, as the housefly carries the typhoid bacillus, but in his salivary gland.

The mosquito is known as the "intermediate host" of the malarial parasite. In other words, the parasite is received into the digestive tract of the mosquito and hospitably entertained and developed until it passes into the salivary gland, from which it is injected into the next human that the mosquito bites.

The mosquito must go and is going. The housefly has been extended to the phlogiston of malaria has been downed. But the "Anopheles" mosquito is the germ host and the one which we must especially seek to destroy. The common mosquito, "Culex," which flies in the daytime, is harmless so far as we know. Anopheles may be known by its attitude on a flat surface—head and body are elevated at an angle, while Culex keeps the body parallel with the surface. Anopheles has spotted wings, culicid not. Anopheles bites in the early evening, Culex at any time.

How to Avoid Mosquitoes.

Avoid the Anopheles mosquito and you will avoid malaria. And air has positively nothing to do with malaria. Particularly avoid being bitten by mosquitoes in the early evening. Screen your house and also screen your bed with netting if you live in a malarial locality. If you do not let mosquitoes breed around your home. A small pail of standing water will produce thousands. I have seen countless swarms of mosquitoes in a glass course where the sole breeding place was a few water boxes for washing golf balls.

Allow no standing water around your place. Screen your water barrel or cistern. Pour coal oil along the margin of swamps or slow running streams. Drain all stagnant water. Deprive the mosquito of a place to breed and the "fever and ague" will not get you.

Pneumonia, Grip, Etc.

Every one fears scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough and diphtheria, for they are well known to be communicable or contagious. It is not so generally known that pneumonia is an infectious general disease with a local manifestation in the lungs. The pneumonia germ, residing in several beautiful names, of which "Diplococcus pneumoniae" is the most commonly used, is rather short lived and easily killed by sunlight and fresh air. In the modern treatment of pneumonia these agencies are utilized, and the patient is treated no way far as possible in the open air. Every precaution should be taken to destroy the spores of pneumonia patients. Strong light is a good disinfectant for this purpose, but burning is better. People in attendance on pneumonia patients should protect themselves from infection.

Home Disinfectants.

Heat—Boiling is the most effective way of sterilizing clothing, handkerchiefs or other articles that can be treated in this way. Useless infected articles should be burned.

Soap and Water—One ounce of common soda to twelve quarts of hot soap and water (soft soap and water) is an excellent cleanser for floor, refrigerators, etc.

Chloride of Lime—Powdered chloride of lime is a strong disinfectant and deodorizer. It should have a pungent, penetrating odor and an extremely irritating effect on the eyes and air passages, otherwise it is inert and useless.

Milk of Lime—One quart of dry, freshly slacked lime to four or five quarts of water; useful for the same purpose as chloride of lime in disinfecting stables, drains, sewage vaults, sinks, all places where putrefaction, foul odors or infection may exist.

Carbolic Acid Solution—Six ounces to one gallon of water. This is dangerous to have around the house and must be used with care. Useful for wiping floor, washing utensils and pouring down drain when infection is feared.

Formalin—One part of formalin to ten of water is quite as useful and less dangerous than the former. For disinfecting rooms use the following for each thousand cubic feet of space: Place four ounces of potassium permanganate crystals in a metal pail; add eight ounces of formalin (40 per cent solution). Place this pail in the middle of the room, which should be left tightly closed for from five to twenty-four hours. Avoid inhaling the gas which is quickly formed after mixing the above ingredients. This gas does not promote bedding or upholstery and does not injure metals or fabrics. It will not destroy insects. Two ounces of gum camphor added to the above mixture will kill flies and mosquitoes.

To completely disinfect clothing, bedding and upholstery the formalin solution must be freely sprayed directly on these articles.

Invention Edison Thought Would Beat the Phonograph.

Megaphone, the Wizard Believed, Would Be More Profitable to Him Financially Than Talking Machine, But Was Deceived.

By E. J. EDWARDS.

Recently I told the story of the late Charles A. Dana's doubt of Edison's good faith in claiming that he had invented a talking machine after the late Amos J. Cummings and myself had reported to Mr. Dana that Edison had demonstrated the machine to us, even going so far as to make it reproduce Mr. Cummings' own voice, inflection and all, with distinction.

After he had shown us the talking machine, explained its mechanism and made it perform for us, Mr. Edison went on to say that he got the idea for the machine while he was at work perfecting his microphone transmitter, extensively employed in the earlier telephones.

"One invention almost invariably suggests another," he went on. "All sorts of notions came to me while I was working out this talking machine. One of them you will see in that big funnel up there," he pointed to a shelf upon which rested, or hung, a curious-looking object resembling a gigantic funnel of about tall man height. "And I'm inclined to think," he went on, "that there's going to be more profit in that thing than in this talking machine here. I have about made up my mind that I won't work on anything unless it seems to me to have some commercial practicability. I can make hundreds of toys, but any fellow with a little ingenuity and patience can do that. Maybe this talking machine is going to be not much more than a toy, after all, but that thing over there—well, I'll show you how it works."

He called two of his assistants to his side and directed them to take their station on the crown of a hill about half a mile away.

While they were doing so, Mr. Edison had the big funnel shaped thing taken out in front of his shop. Then, when the men had posted themselves on the hill and stood facing us, an assistant, getting under the big end of the funnel, held it up while Edison called through the other end. From time to time the men upon the hill made gestures to indicate that they had heard and understood what Edison was saying. Finally, Edison beckoned to them to return, and when they had done so they repeated practically word for word what we had heard their employer say to them through the funnel.

Mr. Cummings and I were almost as much astonished over this demonstration as we had previously been over the talking machine. "What do you call the thing?" I asked Mr. Edison. "Well, it makes a big sound, and I think I'll call it the megaphone," replied Mr. Edison. "As I have already told you, I sometimes think there will be a great deal more in it for me financially than in the talking machine. It will be a great thing on ships; with its aid one ship at a distance can call another ship easily, and a captain can shout his orders clearly and distinctly through it to the uttermost ends of his vessel. It can be used on land, also, for conveying at great distances. In short, this megaphone of mine enlarges the zone of action of the human voice, and for this reason I am inclined to think at times that it will be a more profitable invention than the talking machine. You have seen what it can do, and it does it just as easy as rolling off a log."

I presume that this was the first public demonstration of the Edison invention that has passed into universal use under the name megaphone—a contribution of human progress that has brought his father cents where the phonograph has added to his wealth by the hundred thousands of dollars.

Value of the Bride.

A Methodist minister in Baltimore recently married a young man of the Hawery type who asked him, at the conclusion of the ceremony in the parsonage, how much he "charged." As a hint to the clergyman to keep his fee within reasonable limits, the young man drew a half dollar from his pocket while speaking. The minister explained that no "charge" was made for his services. Whereupon the delighted young husband exclaimed: "Do you hear that, Mar? he don't charge nothing!" and dropped the half dollar back into his pocket.

But the pastor had more to say. He told his visitor that the fee depended on the valuation he placed on the service rendered. If it was worth nothing to marry the young woman at his side, very good; but if he valued her his fee would give some evidence of it. The groom was impenetrable. Slowly he produced the half dollar and laid it in the minister's hand. A one-dollar bill followed. Then he grasped his bride's arm and moved toward the door.—Frederic Walter Norcross, in the Christian Herald.

Why He Lost His Job.

"Are these lace handkerchiefs all linen?" asked the particular lady at the bargain counter.
"No, ma'am," replied the ultra-honest clerk, "the open portions are not linen."

CHINESE SAILORS FEED FISH

Crew of Steamer Chatham Throw Food Overboard for Member Lost by Drowning.

Boston.—So that their drowned brother might not feel the pangs of hunger while on the spiritual high-road to the other world, 23 Chinese sailors, comprising the crew of the British steamer Chatham, which reached Boston the other day from the west coast of South America, threw rice and other foodstuffs into the sea all the way from off the coast of Brazil to Boston Lightship. Li Chow was the late lamented. Chow fell overboard while engaged in boat drill when the steamer was off the coast of Brazil. The Chatham was stopped, and lifeboats launched, but before the lifeboats of them got within twenty feet of Chow he disappeared beneath the waves. Almost immediately after the steamer resumed her way the rest of the Chinese on board began stuffing themselves and eating overboard what they saved from their own hungry.

That the Chatham encountered severe weather in her 10,000-mile journey was amply testified to by damaged dock fittings and smashed deck houses. The steamer was the victim of a blizzard that kicked up waves, which in washing over her decks tore up steampipes and washed all movable objects overboard. The steamer's hospital was smashed in by one comber and several of the crew had to cling with all their might lest they be carried overboard by the receding water. Throughout most of the passage from Chile to Montevideo the steamer was covered with ice and snow, winter weather prevailing.

The Chatham started from Junin, Chile, on August 22, and called at five ports while on route. At Antofagasta she took on 3,010 tons of silver ore, valued at $600,000, and thus her cargo was one of the most valuable ever brought to Boston from South America.

FINALLY SECURES A MATCH

Man Pleads in Ten Languages Before Obtaining Desired Light for His Cigar.

Chicago.—A young man in the garb of a laborer, his hands roughened by work, entered a shoe-shining "parlor" at 93 Clark street. The place was filled with customers and he was compelled to await his turn while some ten youths of various nationalities imparted a mirror-like luster to the coverings of the customers' feet.

The young man, who was 100 Leominster, twenty-six years old, 1800 Leominster street, wished a match. He made his wish known, but the busy bootblacks paid no attention to the request. It was then that the shoe-shining shop developed an atmosphere that was not dissimilar to that which prevailed when confusion fell upon the workmen on the tower of Babel.

"Avez vous un allumette?" inquired Levinson, politely.

One of the bootblacks, replied to the query in French, informing the young man that he had no match; he was very sorry.

Levinson was not discouraged. He proved it by trying again.

"Haben sie eine Licht?"

A youth of obviously Teutonic extraction responded. He also lacked the desired match. Mr. Levinson was plainly irritated. He did not wait for answers, but proceeded to repeat his question in eight other languages.

He asked for the match in Italian, Greek, Armenian, Turkish, Russian, Yiddish, Norwegian and Swedish. He chattered the end of the unlighted cigar nervously.

Finally the domineering cashier in the shop proffered the much-sought match, speaking in a tongue that some present seemed familiar with. She said it was Persian, and no one cared to dispute her word.

Levinson is a cabinet maker and has traveled in various parts of the world.

Tolstoi's Bootmaking.

Many who have never read a line of Tolstoi know that the count, with his peculiar notions of work, made his own boots. Aylmer Maude, in his "Tolstoi's biography," quotes an incident in that connection. "As to the boots Tolstoi made, I asked a man to whom he had given a pair and who, had worn them, whether they were well made. 'Couldn't be worse,' was his reply. I suspect," adds Mr. Maude, and the average reader will not dissent, "that Tolstoi's boot-making was of more value as a spiritual sedative than it was as a contribution to the solution of the economic problem."

Luck and the Gambler.

Luck is another name for superstition. The whole betting milieu is based on pure superstitions belief in a blind chance that will somehow turn and help a fellow out some time. And that's why the innocent victims keep coming in a never-ending stream, keeping to be shorn. And verify, they are not disappointed.

Don't Buy Land at $100 Per Acre in Rock County When You Can Buy Better Land at $32 to $40 Per Acre in Minnesota

There is no misrepresentation here. Every statement will be substantiated by a visit to this land. Call and talk it over. I will tell you all about the land as I have just returned from a trip of personal inspection. If you will take this trip and you do not find the land exactly as I represent it, your railroad fare both ways will be refunded.

This land is in Polk County, Minnesota, in the Red River Valley, one of the richest sections in the Northwest. The soil is virgin and is better soil than Rock County soil. All the improvements, such as rural routes, schools, roads and other buildings, are in. The houses, barns and other buildings are as good as Rock County buildings. There is an abundant rainfall, so much so that the state and county have put in a complete drainage ditch system. Some of the best Rock County farmers who have visited this land have already purchased land here. We will give you reference.

MAN KILLED BY A FALLING DERRICK

Breaking of Derrick Weakens Support and Boom Drops.

IDENTITY OF VICTIM UNKNOWN

Accident Occurred at Excavation for Woolworth Building in New York—Workmen Escape Death by Very Narrow Margin.

New York, Dec. 14.—A man was killed and a boy was mortally injured by a derrick boom which, detached from its support by the breaking of a cable, dropped across the sidewalk on the south side of Park Place, a little west of Broadway. The heavy boom crashed through a fence built between the sidewalk and an excavation for the new Woolworth building.

Scores of people were in the vicinity at the time. A steady stream of persons was passing from the Park Place station of the Sixth Avenue "L," but it so happened that no one was within reach of the destructive piece of derrick except the two victims. The man was killed instantly. Not only the boom, but a heavy pulley fell on him, crushing his head.

The boy, James Pappalino, 15 years old, 431 East One Hundred and Fifteenth street, suffered a fracture of the skull and other serious injuries and was taken to St. Gregory hospital. There were no papers in the pockets of the man who was killed to give a clue to his identity. He had $1.32 in an old pocketbook, which also contained a small brass religious medal stamped with a figure of St. Joseph and a worn and unrecognizable Latin inscription.

The work of excavating for the foundations of the Woolworth building, which is to be the second tallest structure in the world, is being done by the Foundation company. Four derricks are at work. The cables of each are inspected every morning by a man specially detailed to that work.

According to the officers of the Foundation company, the cable which appeared to be in perfect condition, but a cable of the derrick in the north-west corner of the excavation gave way, just as the great timber boom, from which depended a steel bucket of earth and stone weighing a ton was swinging over the side of the walk. The bucket and its contents tumbled back into the excavation, narrowly missing a gang of workmen, the boom swinging sideways and dropped across the sidewalk.

The salary of President Vincent was fixed by the board of regents at $10,000. Dr. Northrop was elected president emeritus.

ELECTRICITY AS ILLUMINANT

Commercial Value Was Not Developed in This Country Until After the Centennial Exhibition of 1876.

The first experimental philosopher to discover that electric light could be produced by a dry battery was Sir Humphry Davy, who in 1810 exhibited a light three inches long, between carbon points, before the Royal Society of London. But no commercial value was attached to the use of electricity as an illuminant until more than half a generation later. The Centennial exhibition, held in Philadelphia in 1876, really marks the era of our present form of electric light, though electric lights had been in use abroad prior to that time. The exhibition of models and practical demonstrations of electric lights at Philadelphia in 1876 attracted the attention of scientists and capitalists in this country, and the first incandescent lamps and the first arc system were put to practical use in a small way in 1876. The Brush arc light gained favor in the beginning as the most adaptable for street lighting, and Cleveland, O., the home of Charles Francis Brush, the inventor, was the first American city to adopt the arc system for street lighting. Since 1878, both the Brush arc system and the Edison incandescent system have developed.—Morley's Magazine.

Skill With Tools and Brush Will Make Child's Clothes Rack and Hanging Lamp.

If you are turning out arts and crafts the making of the hanging lamp illustrated will hold no terror for you. Given a black iron kettle with four little feet, get a blacksmith to help, telling him just what to do. Have also a kettle, a dishpan, a tin plate and some iron chain. Have the smith fasten around the rim of the kettle on the outside at equal distances four iron pieces with holes through which the link of a chain can be passed. In each of these fasten a piece of iron chain about three feet long, shorter if the ceiling be very low. Now take a tin dishpan without handles, but of good size, and paint it dull black on the outside and a soft shade of green on the inside. Cut a round hole in the middle of the bottom, with space for a lamp chimney to go through. At four places around the rim equidistant cut holes large enough for a link of the chain to slip through, or it may be simpler to separate the chain here, fastening a hook to the lower length of chain and running the hook through the hole in the pan, entering the upper length to the hook on the other side. By slipping a small piece of iron through the link or the end of the hook on the under side of the pan it will be kept from slipping down unevenly.

For the upper part of this lamp a pin would do if it were heavy enough. But it would perhaps be better to have the blacksmith or hardware man cut a round plaque of iron or brass. If the latter it too should be painted black. This should be fitted at the edge with four heavy rings, very firmly placed, to which the four chains are fastened. In the center, on the upper side, is a heavy hook by which the lamp hangs, another hook being screwed through a painted pin into the ceiling. This inverted pin protects the ceiling from the smoke of the lamp.

Child's Clothes Rack.

A useful and attractive gift for a child is a clothes rack which may be hung on the nursery wall.

A piece of wood twenty inches wide and five inches deep will do nicely for the foundation of the rack.

Cut a piece of white linen one inch larger than the board. Lay it on a table over a piece of blotting paper and fasten down with thumb tacks. Next transfer the design on the material by means of light blue carbon paper. Then tint the drawing with water color paints.

When the embroidery is finished place the material on the board and paste the edges on the back. Cover the edges with a piece of lining paper, tack on the ribbon and screw in the books.

PRIDE OF THE CAVALRY BANDS

Horse That Bears the Kettle Drums Must Be Handsome, Dignified and Especially Well Trained.

In certain armies of the world there are grades of honor among the horses, as well as among the men. The proudest and most dignified of all the horses of the army is the animal that fills the position of drum horse in the regimental band. In some armies cavalry bands are mounted, and the most honorable position in all the band is that of the bearer of the kettle drums. The horse is selected for his distinguished appearance. He is often plumed, although sometimes pure white, but whatever his color his appearance must be consistent with the conspicuous position he has to fill.

Something more than mere beauty of form is required of the drum horse. He must be trained until he becomes a dignified and graceful bearer of the trappings that pertain to his high calling. His education is severe and prolonged, bringing him up to that point where his pride and intelligence make him equal to the duties required of him.

His nerves are severely tried by the booming of the large drums he carries, but in time he becomes so indifferent to their noise as war horses do to the singing bullets. In the parade his rider has his hands full in the use of the sticks. He controls the horse by means of reins fastened to the stirrup cup near the foot.—Harper's Weekly.

A Modern Problem. The paragraphers are still keeping in circulation that paragraph about the judge who ruled a man need not support his mother-in-law. What is it, impeccability, tight-waddledness or just pure cussedness?

BREAD RIOTS NOW FEARED IN CHICAGO GARMENT STRIKE.

Twenty thousand garment workers join in a parade in Chicago. The photograph taken by staff photographer of the parade in Chicago as it was marching to the ball park to consider police terms. The parade was a mile and a half long and it is estimated 20,000 were in line. The paraders were orderly. While they were passing Hull

House, Miss Jane Addams stood near the front gate and waved her hand as the marchers cheered for Hull House. There were many banners in line, but the order that no red flags be carried was obeyed. Hundreds of girls, however, wore red hats and badges, while the men wore red neckties and badges. The banners were printed in red ink.

At the baseball park the paraders were addressed by a number of speakers who told them they ought to consider carefully the arbitration arrangement offered. No end is in sight, however, of the strike which practically means starvation for many of the forty-five thousand striking workers now out.

CHAPTER XVII.

A PROPOSAL OF MARRIAGE.

After the restaurant was cleaned and all outsiders gone Alexander remained, wandering dolefully about the room and discussing with Leo Cohen the sum he hoped to get from the company in which he was insured against fire.

The conversation ought to have been of absorbing interest to Cohen, as eventually Alexander's business would be his, provided there were no hitch in the marriage negotiations. Nevertheless, he was absentminded, for the new waiter had not yet left the premises, and the watchful Cohen had noticed a peculiar light in Alexander's eye when her father had brusquely ordered her upstairs, "out of the way."

She had offered no objection to going and had hidden Leo good night very prettily. But before tripping away she paused for an instant in the corridor, her face turned toward the kitchen in which P. Gordon was helping Black Dick put things to rights. Cohen noticed this turn of the head, this furtive hesitation, standing as he did near the doorway now stripped of the red curtain. But when Alexander had vanished above Alexander dismissed Blinky and the Pole, shutting the door which usually stood open, because of the draft from the broken window.

"Why don't you send that man Gordon away, too?" Cohen asked. "Because I'm paying him big money, and he's got to earn it," explained Alexander. "He can stay and help Dick tidy up, if it takes till 12 o'clock. It ain't hurtin' us. Why should you care?"

Even Cohen, who seldom erred on the side of timidity in speech, scarcely ventured to put into words the reason why he did, "care."

Meantime Ildora had been busy justifying her lover's worst fears. As she reached the top of the staircase she heard the loud humming of the door which had been warped and blistered by the heat. Her heart gave a little jump of excitement. Already she was keyed to a highly emotional state, and in her longing for a talk with Loveland alone she was ready to run almost any risk. The unexpected shutting of the restaurant door caused her a tremor of delight. She tiptoed down again, with her heart loud as a hammer in her breast, and slipped softly into the kitchen, not daring to speak till she had quietly closed the door, also lest the sound of her voice should carry across the passage.

"Oh, Mr. Gordon," she breathed, "I'm so sorry about your poor hand! And your face is scorched too! I do wish you'd let me do something for you." Loveland thanked her, but said that Dick had bandaged up his hand and wrist very nicely with a soothing application of lard on an old rag. Ildora gave a little sniff of scorn for the negro's ministrations. "A pretty bandage," she sneered—"a nasty torn bit of coarse towel! And lard ain't the right thing either. I've taken lessons in first aid. All the girls in my school did, and I ain't forgot what I learnt. Please come with me, and I'll do you up all right. Now, don't say no or you'll hurt my feelings. I feel ready to cry anyway, and I sure will if you ain't kind."

"Oh, I'll come!" he said desperately and followed Ildora into the passage. The parlor, which also served as dining room, was appalling in its bravery of old gold plush and portraits of de-funct ladies and gentlemen on a claret colored wall paper.

She made Loveland sit down in a leather armchair which smelled of the tobacco her father affected, and then, kneeling on a low footstool beside him, she began to unfasten Black Dick's clumsy bandage.

"I don't like to have you wait or me," said Loveland, who a few weeks ago took the most exaggerated petting for granted from pretty women.

"Well, I like to do it anyhow," replied the girl, with a lingering, liquid glance. "You're so brave I'm proud to be waiting on you. I never knew anybody just like you before."

Loveland thought this very probable, but merely remarked, with becoming modesty, that he had done very little.

"I'm glad," she almost sobbed. "Oh, you're worth more to me than anything in the world. I won't cry again if you ask me not. I'll do whatever you want me to. Pa'd most kill me if he knew I was talking like this. But I don't care—I don't care for anybody but you—no one else. Oh, suppose I'd let Pa make me marry Leo Cohen before I'd met you!"

Loveland was dumfounded. "My dear girl," he exclaimed, "you don't know what you are saying! You—" "I do know," Ildora broke in. "I know you are poor and in a lot of trouble, and you might have gone to prison. But you're a gentleman, all right. You're you, and that's enough. If you care about me the same as I do about you, why, all the rest!"

"But I—I mean—I'm sure you don't really care," stammered Val, checking himself on the verge of saying something rude.

"I do care. You needn't be afraid," she assured him. "I wouldn't have said a word, I'd 'a' waited for you to speak if things had been different, but I saw how you felt by the way your eyes looked a minute ago, and I wouldn't stop for manners, because, I say to myself, he's too much of a gentleman to tell a girl he loves her when he's got nothing and she everything."

"I hope I am too much of a gentleman to—Val began desperately, but she cut him short with one little plump, poutchouli scented hand over his mouth.

"I know it. That's what I said. You don't need to tell me," she hurried on. "We'll have to run away and get married. Then Pa'll forgive me. I'm all his got. He couldn't bear me to want for anything. But it's no use asking him that. He's no use."

"Dear girl, I have no idea of asking him—"

"No, of course. You ain't so silly. His heart's set on my taking Leo, but I wouldn't touch him with a ten foot pole now. My hero, I'll marry you tomorrow!"

"The devil you will!" said Alexander.

"They stood together at the door, he and Leo Cohen, who had persuaded the old man at last on one excuse or another to let him upstairs."

The girl struggled up from her knees, and as Loveland bounded out of the big chair she caught his arm, musing against him.

"You villain! Stealin' my gal's love behind my back and enticin' her to run off with you!" stammered Alexander, purple with fury.

"I didn't," began Val indignantly. "What! You didn't? You want me to believe my gal asked you to marry her?"

Loveland started as if Alexander had struck him and flinched to the forehead. Involuntarily he glanced at Ildora, who looked up at him beseechingly. "Spare me!" the almost eyes implored.

"No—I don't want you to believe that," he said. And how long he would have laughed had he been told a few weeks ago that he would tell himself he misunderstood and shamed for the sake of a girl like Ildora! But now he did not feel it strange that he should make this sacrifice for her. And, curiously enough, it seemed to be Lesley Dearmer's voice, Lesley Dearmer's eyes, which, haunting him always, bade him spare this common little woman at any cost.

"You are a sneaky!" said Alexander. "Ain't you ashamed of yourself?"

"No," answered Loveland. "Shows what you are, den. You're a thief. You try to steal my daughter because you think you got her money!"

"Oh, Pa, he loves me! It's no he wants!" wailed Ildora, weeping, yet not daring to defend her lover at the expense of womanly self respect.

"You're a little fool, Izzle, or you wouldn't believe any such a thing," Alexander scolded her, somewhat softened by her tears. "A feller like dat—a fraud, a liar!"

"If you were a younger man you wouldn't dare to say that," Loveland cut him short. "It's you who are lying."

"What! You call me a liar? You—You cheat, you convict!" spluttered Alexander. "Take dat for your impudence!" And, rushing at Loveland like an angry bull, he struck him with both podgy fists.

Ildora screamed and seized her father's arms, crying out that he was wicked, cruel, ungrateful to the man who had saved his house from burning. "Don't be afraid—I'm not going to strike back," Loveland reassured her. "He knows that."

"Yes, he knows dat because he knows youse a coward," Alexander sneered, wheezing athletically. "You just git!"

"That's exactly what I'm anxious to do," said Loveland. "Goodby, Miss Alexander."

"Oh, you ain't leaving me forever!" cried the girl. "Pa, don't send him away like this! He's 'a'nt to b'lieve."

She hesitated, stammering. Then a wild longing to keep her lover at all hazards overcame fear and scruples. "It's no who!"

"Don't," said Loveland. "You can do no good. I shan't forget your kindness. We won't see each other again, but you must forget tonight and marry some man who can make you happy. Goodby once more."

"And," pushing past Cohen, who hovered near the door, he sent the commercial traveler sprawling as he walked out of the room.

Black Dick, who had been told to guard the broken window of the restaurant in the master's absence, had heard all or most of the disturbance from the foot of the stairs, and he ran after Loveland to suggest the wisdom of getting money from Alexander.

"He am a mighty wicked old man," whispered the negro. "You done a lot fur him, an' now he kick you out o' de house widout wages."

"I shan't never get a penny from the old beast. It's useless to try," said Loveland heavily, seeing a vision of homeward bound ships sailing away without him on board. "Goodby, Dick. I wish I had something to give you to remember me by, but I haven't."

"Lawd, why I'm a rich man wid money in de bank," protested Dick. "Do you think because I got a black face I take snuff off'n you? No; on de older hand, I lend you what you like, sah, and you pay me back when you like. You've tret me like a gentleman."

Loveland thanked him, curiously touched, and as he refused the loan he found himself, somewhat to his own surprise, shaking hands warmly with the colored cook.

Dick William sat reading in the cold corner of the writing room in the Dat hotel. Somehow when he had not denuded himself of his last nickel and could afford to pay for a corner anywhere it was always the coldest corner, because he blithely sacrificed his chances of the warmer ones to others.

"Say, just look at this, my boy!" he exclaimed, his eye sparkling with excitement; as he pointed to a paragraph which he had marked with red ink from a bottle on the table.

"Wanted" was the attractive word which headed the paragraph, and that was what Val had expected, but as he read on he grew puzzled. "Wanted—"

For repository work, juvenile leading man; must be tall; good looking; not over thirty; gentlemanly manners and appearance; slim figure; fashionable wardrobe on and off stage; no boozers or loafers need apply. Write at once, enclosing photo and stating experience, age, weight and lowest salary, to Jack Jacobus, managing star tour for Little de Lisle, the Little Human Flower, Modunk, O."

"Great Scott, ain't it the grandest ever?" Bill demanded, with a beaming smile. "My little gal, Little de Lisle! It's her! It's her! There can't be two Little de Lises. Praise be, I've heard of her again! And she's way up top. She's a star!"

"Oh, the girl you used to be in love with at the theater?" asked Loveland. "Used to be? Was, am and will be till I end my days. Gee, every week whenever there was a spare dime I've always bought this paper to see if I could run across her name and know where she was or what she'd do."

And here she is a star on a tour of her own, don't business as a 'little human flower.' Great, ain't it?"

"Why don't you write and say you'd like to have this engagement?"

"Me? Oh, Jiminy, am I a good looking—am I under thirty, with a fashionable wardrobe on and off? Huh, mine's mostly off!" Bill laughed and then sighed. "The good Lord didn't make me for no juvenile lead."

"But if she still likes you she'd stretch a point in your favor," Loveland suggested.

"Jacobus wouldn't. He was the property man I told you about that got me the sack on account of Little."

"By Jove!" exclaimed Val. "I say, you don't suppose he's married her since?"

40 FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Dec. 14, 1870.—Jottings.—A two horse team belonging to Mr. Cyrus Davis of the town of Fulton, ran away last evening on Milwaukee street. Mr. Davis was in the wagon but was unable to control the animals who dashed over the Nicholson pavement and across the upper bridge, breaking off a lamp post in front of the post-office, which seemed to satisfy them that enough had been accomplished in the way of damages, for they stopped and allowed themselves to be caught. The wagon and driver were left at the west end of the bridge. We understand that Mr. Davis was slightly injured.

Fifty-six thousand six hundred and fifty dollars' worth of cigars were sold by the manufacturers in Iron County, during the past month.

The receipts of the Harris Manufacturing company, for the quarter ending October 30th, amounted to $118,000.

Mr. J. B. Crosby and family leave this city tomorrow, for the south. Mr. Crosby's health finally compelling him (though reluctantly, to act on the advice of his physician and seek a climate more favorable to one in his condition. He has now no definite point in view but we believe it is his intention to take up his residence on the seacoast. Though he can no longer make Janesville his place of residence, he has manifested his interest in the welfare and prosperity of this city and county by retaining as a permanent investment, a large amount in the manufacturing interest of Janesville. Mr. Crosby has lived in Janesville over 18 years and during all that time, has been identified with the business interests and prosperity of our city. In 1885, with others, he established the Rock County Bank, which, in 1885, was merged into the Rock County National Bank and during his management it has had a period of prosperity unknown in banking history. It has not lost a dollar in all its transactions in all this time.

At an adjourned meeting of the citizens of Janesville held last evening in the council rooms a Board of Trade was organized and the following officers elected: M. C. Smith, president; James Sutherland, vice-president; Jas. Harris, second vice-president; F. S. Lawrence, recording secretary; Cyrus Miner, treasurer.

Our Duty. It is the duty oftentimes to do what thou wouldst not; thy duty, too, to leave undone what thou wouldst do.—Thomas a Kempis.

Old Men Retired Industrial Concerns will Engage Only Young Men

In these days of strenuous competition when dividends count for more than men, the man who retains his youth is the man who holds his job the longest.

That is why one of the most successful dermatologists in Paris has warned young men to take good care of the hair. If you grow bald at 30 or 35 or even when you are older, that bald spot will so far as appearance goes add 10 years to your life.

Men who have hair should by all means keep it. In later years it may mean a livelihood to yourself and family.

Dandruff means falling hair; falling hair means dandruff. Stop falling hair and dandruff now. Go to The People's Drug Co. and get a large 50 cent bottle of Parlan's Sage. They will guarantee it to stop falling hair; to drive out all dandruff and kill the dandruff germs, or money back.

Remember that the man with a bald head who seeks a position is handicapped at the start. Parlan's Sage will make hair grow, will give it a lustrous appearance that denotes health and youthfulness. For sale by The People's Drug Co. and druggists everywhere. Girl with Auburn hair on every bottle.

Longevity in Birds. Wild geese have been known to live to the age of 100, and the raven commonly lives 50 years. A record is said to be extant showing that a cock-atom once attained the ripe old age of 81 years.

The Sketch Diagnosed. When the curtain went up at a small puce on the vaudeville playlet, a weeping-willow lady gowned in soft, clinging stuff was discovered seated alone before the red-lantern-lighted fireplace in the dimly-lighted drawing-room, of a late November evening.

"That settles it," whispered Galey to his wife, as he reached for his hat. "I'm going out to see a man for half an hour—you can do the weeping for both of us!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Discouraging Vagabondage. The Luxembourg government is treating incorrigible vagabonds to bread and water for the first four days of their imprisonment, and to the lowest scale of ordinary diet twice a week afterward. The prisons are said to be emptying fast.

TESTED AND PROVEN There is a Heap of Solace in Being Able to Depend Upon a Well-Earned Reputation.

For months Janesville readers have seen the constant expression of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. E. J. O'Brien, 1029 W. Bluff St., Janesville, Wis., says: "It is with pleasure that I recommend Doan's kidney complaint, but since using know whereof I speak, when I say that they are a reliable kidney medicine. For ten years I suffered from kidney complaint, but since using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the People's Drug Co., I have enjoyed much better health. I hope that my statement will lead other kidney sufferers to try Doan's Kidney Pills." (Statement given in August, 1903.)

Re-endorsement. When Mrs. O'Brien was interviewed on September 23, 1910, she added to the above: "I am still glad to say a word in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. Occasionally during the past two years when I have needed a kidney medicine, I have taken this remedy and the results have always been satisfactory."

CLUB DISCUSSED NEEDS OF CITY

"YOU'LL SUCCEED IN JANESVILLE" EVENING AT THE TWILIGHT CLUB.

EVERYONE MUST BOOST

Speakers Urged Concerted Action On Part Of Every Citizen For Larger and Better City

Last evening's meeting of the Twilight club was given over to the industrial and commercial club with the subject, the city's slogan, "You'll Succeed in Janesville." It was one of the largest gatherings of Janesville men that has assembled in some time and interest was keen and enthusiastic high which promises great things for the city's future.

A. P. Lovejoy, president of the industrial and commercial club, acted as leader last evening and in opening the program he reviewed the history of the industrial club. He said it was especially fitting for this club to furnish the evening's program for the Twilight club as it owed its origin to that organization. He reviewed briefly the events leading to the founding of the club, the securing of a general secretary to take charge of the work, and some of the things that they had accomplished in the short time which it has been in existence. Among these he spoke of the re-organization of the switching service in the local yards, improvements along various lines of activity, efforts in the way of adjustments of freight rates, accomplishments in the way of advertising the city, and the organization of the retailers and manufacturers of the city.

Janesville Needs Ginger

"Present Facts and Future Hopes" was the subject of Secretary Dr. A. J. Gibbons' address. "Industry in this city has a need," said the secretary, "and that is a big supply of ginger. It is necessary to corral the business men and inject into them ginger because without it you can't accomplish anything." He told of some of the industries that are in Janesville at the present time and emphasized their importance throughout the country. "We need more factories," he said, "and one of the best sanitariums in the country could be located in Janesville. It is a case of believing in the city and talking the city's virtues to every one you meet. Don't knock, but boost. The support of every member of the Twilight club and of every citizen of Janesville is needed by the industrial club. With the concerted action of all the people and with the necessary amount of ginger we can be sure of success in every line of activity."

Freight Rate Problem

A. J. Gibbons, chairman of the traffic committee, spoke on "Our Freight Situation." "In spite of all the legislation on railroad rates," said Mr. Gibbons, "the railroads still have the power to band together and make advances in rates and the shippers are without redress until someone strong enough and with money enough to fight in the courts and before the rate commission, comes along. Janesville has made some progress along the line of the freight problem when a committee of the industrial club went to Chicago in October and in an interview with Mr. Brigham of the C. & N. W. railway, secured the postponement of an order advancing the rates in this section until Feb. 1. This order meant the wiping out of the commodity car local rates between Chicago and Milwaukee and the various points in this section. If these changes had gone into effect Janesville would have stood no chance of redress, but with the postponement there is still a fighting chance. The industrial club is doing much in the study of the rate problem and they intend to do much more. They plan to keep an account of all changes in the rate of both roads and of the ruling of the state and interstate commerce commissions. We want to establish a rate bureau and keep the city in line with the spirit of progress."

"Janesville's Possibilities"

In his address on "Janesville's Possibilities," Roy, David Benton stated that it was elemental conditions for an enterprising city is that it be physically clean. "When a city is clean and well-lighted it signifies that there is a public spirit in the community. Janesville is not as clean as it might be and that is one of the very first conditions to be remedied. The democratic spirit in Janesville is a great feature and makes it a good place to live in. There is another striking fact that must not be lost sight of and that is that measure of success which the city attains is not determined by the financial interests alone, but by the moral and social welfare of the city is just as important. In order to prosper a city must meet the moral changes which accompany the industrial and commercial revolution. Our location possesses many beauties and advantages and if we can say that Janesville is a good place to educate the children, is a fine place to have a home, and that its influence are for the moral uplift of the people, then we may say that our city has gained signal success. We need to hold together and if there is any second slogan for our community it is that the success of any individual or interest works for the success of all."

Mr. Bruce on City Development

Mr. William George Bruce, secretary of the Milwaukee Merchants and Manufacturers' association, delivered the principal address of the evening on "City Promotion and Development." "Cities are like men," he said. "The strong are eager to overcome obstacles while the weak see a mountain in the most fertile plain. There are certain duties in every city which cannot be assigned to any one man or to the city's authorities but which must be left to some organization of the business and professional men. In every American city there is a place for the industrial and commercial organization which can handle matters of the municipality's growth and development in an unpartisan and unpolitical spirit."

"States of the middle west like Wisconsin have experienced their first growth along the lines of agriculture and much has been done by the government and the schools to further the agricultural interests. But it is now time that consideration be given to the second growth which must come along the industrial lines. Cities like Janesville should take an inventory of their assets and possibilities and when it has been determined what their actual advantages are they should be exploited. The commercial and financial interests of the city depend on the industrial interests. It is necessary that the people stand together for the things that mean for the spirit of patronage of home merchants and loyalty to home activities. "It is also within the sphere of the industrial organization to look to the moral interests of the community. Education should be considered and trade schools should be established as part of the educational system of every city. The school and work shop must go hand in hand in these days when the apprentice system is passing away. Janesville needs a trade school. "We are all connected with the moral rise or decline of the nation; its hopes are our hopes; its ambitions, our ambitions; and it is our duty to work together in our city and community to secure the best possible destiny of ourselves and our country."

WAS RUN OVER BY DR. PALMER'S AUTO

William Thomas, Age 13, Victim Of Unavoidable Accident On Center Avenue Last Night.

William Thomas, age 13, a son of Mr. and Mrs. August Thomas who reside at 814 Center Avenue, was run over by an automobile driven by Dr. W. H. Palmer about twenty minutes after four o'clock yesterday afternoon and was picked up in an unconscious condition.

The accident happened on Center Avenue, a short distance north of the Monterey bridge and was unavoidable. Dr. Palmer was on his way to Eastern Avenue with Walter, Schaefer, who had been injured and was being conveyed to his home. The car was just behind a wagon which was moving in the same direction and there were several boys on the rear end of the vehicle. Just as the doctor started to turn to the right and go by the wagon on a slight upgrade, there being no chance to get by on the left side, the Thomas boy decided to abandon his associates and dropped out. Dr. Palmer saw him; the boys shouted shrill and sudden warnings; but the car was too near and it was impossible to stop it quick enough on the snow covered highway. Thomas was knocked down by the fender and the body of the machine passed over him, though he was fortunate enough to escape the wheels. A projecting boy, probably caused the bad sculp wound on the back of the boy's head.

The machine was stopped in two car-lengths and Dr. Palmer ran back to pick up the lad. At first he could distinguish no pulse-beat and it seemed that his worst apprehensions were to be realized. However, the unfortunate youth soon began to respond to restorative measures and when Dr. Palmer had gotten him to a neighbor's residence, the Thomas home, being closed and locked, he was able to answer questions. There had been a concussion of the brain, caused undoubtedly by the impact of the victim's head on the frozen earth, but indications seemed to show that the skull had not been fractured. It is believed that the chances for the boy's complete recovery are very good.

Schumacher was "hurt" while assisting in unloading some draft beams from a car at the Northwestern repair shops. One of the beams which he and another employee were lifting became caught on the ceiling of the car door and the latter lost his hold. It came down on Schumacher and one of his limbs was badly bruised and "barked".

From all over Southern Wisconsin letters to Santa Claus are coming to the Gazette office to be sent to the dear old chap up at the North Pole on Friday night. The mail bag which hangs in one of the windows where everyone can see it, also receives its share of letters that are dropped into it by the little writers whose faith in the dear old Saint is unbounded. The mail bag closes on Friday night and it will disappear and before morning Santa will have it at his big feet, packed up, north. Santa has lots of people working for him making toys for his little friends and he has sent the following photograph so the

From Hungary come most of the animals and figures in rubber and the papier mache dolls. Japan has of recent years increased her output in toys and is today supplying every country on the globe with the Japanese dolls so familiar to the toy stores. These are made of paper, bamboo, ivory and enamel.

Nuremberg and Paris lead the world in the production of dolls. Toyland has seen a great transition in the last few years. The scientific toys and toys of sport have to a considerable extent replaced the simpler toys of a generation ago. WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

HAVE you got it done yet, as you really ought to have, or are you in the midst of it, as you probably are, or have you not yet started?

What?—why your Christmas shopping, of course, who on earth or off it—wonder if they have Christmas in the inhabited planets—is thinking of anything else at this time of the year?

If you haven't got the subject of Christmas along with your Christmas presents neatly done up in white paper, tied with red ribbon and put away in your bureau drawer, here are a few disjointed do-and-don'ts on the subject.

I knit so many to give away that I just didn't have time to make any for myself.

Take that hint and don't be afraid to give embroidery to some friend who embroiders. Ten to one, she either doesn't have time or doesn't like to do it for herself.

If you have some friend who has hard work to make both ends meet, don't invariably say, "I must give her something useful," and deluge her with homely useful things, but occasionally vary the monotony by giving her some pretty, dainty, frivolous gift. There are heart needs as well as body needs and by giving her a dainty jabot or pretty pin you may satisfy a craving for something pretty, as imperative as the craving for food or drink.

Don't forget the red cross stamps. The postoffice issued an edict last year that these stamps should not be placed on the front of letters or packages because of the confusion that this causes in the postoffice department, but you may put as many as you like on the back of letters and packages and use them as stickers, and in this way you may help furnish the stamps of war for one of the greatest fights that ever was waged—the battle against the great white plague in America.

Do, if you can keep it, sign this pledge. It was circulated by some enthusiastic young reformers and called "Yours for a courageous, sincere and Christly Christmas—"

"I will give no gift which I cannot afford.
"I will give no gift which has not love behind it.
"I will give some gift which shall not be exchanged gifts at all but genuine generosity to someone to whom it will mean very much."

THE KITCHEN CABINET

FIND earth not gray, but rosy,
Heaven not grim, but fair of hue,
Do I stoop, I pick a posy;
Do I stand and stare, all's blue.
—Robert Browning.

Left-overs.

There is a prejudice in the minds of many people that anything warmed over or served the second time is objectionable. There are rare housekeepers who are able to make ends meet and not have any waste. In planning the meals for a week ahead one is able to make dishes for breakfast or supper from the leftover of the day before. Vegetables of all kinds may with careful handling be transformed into salads, creamed and scalloped dishes; in fact, there are numerous ways of serving them.

Meats, being our most expensive food, must be bought and prepared with care. The most expensive cuts do not contain any more nutriment than the cheaper ones. By slow cooking and care in seasoning the cheaper meats may be made most appetizing. A nice way to use bits of leftover chicken is to add it to cooked macaroni in layers, adding gravy or cream for moisture, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

After a boiled dinner, a most delicious hash may be made which many prefer to the boiled dinner itself. Chop the corned beef, after freeing it from all gristle, and add an equal quantity of the cold vegetables—beet, carrot, cabbage, turnip and potato. Season with salt and pepper, add a little water and cook slowly until brown underneath. Turn and fold on a platter. Garnish with parsley and serve.

Luncheon Chicken.

Cook two tablespoonfuls of butter with a slice of onion and a slice of carrot cut in bits for five minutes; add two tablespoonfuls of flour and one cup of chicken stock. Strain and add a cup of cold cooked chicken, cut in dice and well seasoned. Turn on a buttered platter and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Make four nests, and in each slip an egg; sprinkle with crumbs and set in the oven until the eggs are firm. This is a dish of nutriment sufficient for a dinner.

THE BACKWARD LOOK.

Do you remember the story of Lot's wife—how she was made into a pillar of salt all because she turned for a backward look when she was forbidden to do so? Poor woman, even the prospect of a better and a happier life could not overcome in her the temptation to look back.

Well, the type didn't disappear with the transmuting of Lot's wife. There are a lot of people on earth today who can't resist the temptation to look back. They must have that backward look into the past even though they might have—beams of the early part of their careers.

It is a physical impossibility for a body of matter to travel in opposite directions at the same time. So, too, it is impossible for a human being to progress physically, morally, intellectually or spiritually while looking backward.

SEAL DAY SALE TO BE A SPIRITED ONE

Young Ladies Are Entering Into the Spirit of the Work and Most Encouraging Results Are Expected.

Saturday will be Seal Day. There have been tag days, but this is Seal Day and the young ladies with the packets of the Christmas Anti-Tuberculosis stamps for sale will invade every store and office building, in search of purchasers to aid the good cause along.

The first Christmas seals ever issued were sold in 1862 to raise money for the relief of soldiers in the Civil War; forty-eight years later Christmas seals are being sold for much the same purpose. One was for the preservation of the Union; today's is for the preservation of the people of the world against the great enemy, consumption.

The war of today exacts a more appalling toll than the war of 1861-1865. More people die from consumption in America each year than were killed in all of the battles of the Civil War during the entire four years.

The seals sold in 1862 were known as "Charity Stamps." After that year their use was abandoned and it was not until forty years later that the idea was adopted to provide means of relief for sufferers from consumption. Norway and Sweden sold Christmas stamps in 1894 to further anti-tuberculosis work. In 1907 the method found vogue in America, Delaware leading a Christmas stamp. The National Red Cross then adopted the idea and has been issuing a holiday greeting sticker each year since that time.

Every penny accruing from the sale of Christmas seals this year will be devoted to the crusade against consumption. The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association holds the exclusive rights to sell the seals in this state. The seals are bought at wholesale or a little more than cost from the national society and sold at a penny each. The net proceeds of the Wisconsin sale will, of course, be used exclusively for the work in this state, while the national society's net proceeds, small though they be, will go into the Red Cross anti-tuberculosis fund for general work throughout the United States, Wisconsin included.

Christmas seals cost a penny each whether purchased one at a time or in wholesale quantities.

By ROSE TERRELL.

Do you long to do something for the poor? Is your Christmas spirit much larger than your pocket book? Then take your camera and go down among the tenements and take pictures of the children who cluster so thickly there. Let the mothers know what you are doing and allow them to have a chance to wash the little faces and comb the straggling locks. What mothers of them all care for a picture that is an "art" picture of rags and dirt. They want a "dressed up" and posed portrait. Just remember that you are doing this to make others happy, and not to add to your own collection. Take the new baby and the fat little toddlers as well as the school children and the truant boy. Make as good a print as you are able to make and mount it like the photographer mounts his. Little frames that can be bought, glass and all, for ten cents, will make the gift more valuable. With a little money, plenty of time and an honest desire to make others happy, the camera has its mission.

A white wood box, 2 feet broad by 1 foot deep and 1 foot wide, with a hinged top that is strong and useful makes a gift that even a young child appreciates. A child has so many treasures for which there seems to be no place in the house that a box all his own to keep them in will give great happiness. Some of the little figures of animals may be trapped on thin paper and transferred and then flat color washed in to finish. No elaborate outfit is necessary to do this work. A sheet of carbon paper and a hair pin for a stylus is used in making these little figures. Even a child can do it. A row around the box or a group on the top makes a lovely gift.

For the girl who has books, a case like the design may be made. This was made from common boards found in an old box. The shelves are just a comfortable width to hold the ordinary book and two rows are enough. This case should have either rubber bulls at each corner, or the rubber rollers. Finish with stain in any color desired or painted. Consult your local paint man as to finish. Proprietary articles can not be named in this column, but the information is easy to procure. Do not be afraid to ask questions of any one whom you think possesses of the desired information. People usually enjoy imparting information, and you will be sure to get many pointers. If you like the tinsel, tinsel, a design of palm trees in rich, warm vermilion and green will give the true Christmas colors to the gift.

The colored post card has been done to death, but if you will use the carbon paper to transfer some dainty child figures to heavy cream drawing paper the size of the ordinary card, or squares, and then draw daintily then either write or print a loving or friendly word, pleasant thoughts may be yours from many quarters. A figure of a child with a traveling case might have Stevenson's words: "This little paper traveler goes forth to your door charged with tender greetings. Pay you take him in. He comes from a home where you are well beloved."

SKIN DISEASES.

Skin diseases are superficial indications of disturbed nutrition, often chronic and hereditary. They should be regarded as symptoms and not treated superficially only. Fasting, followed by milk or cereal diet with water treatment and systematic exercises, is the radical cure. If the disease has become chronic and is due to hereditary taint radical treatment is often required, by following a strict diet for several months. Stale bread and milk is the most generally acceptable in such cases.

TO TIE CORK IN BOTTLE

First make a loop in a piece of strong twine and pass both ends through at B and A. Place the loop over the neck of the bottle and draw it snugly at A and tie in a hard knot at B, when there will be a string on both sides of the bottle to tie firmly over the cork, also a handy loop to handle the bottle with.

Delicious Breakfast Muffins.

One-third teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoonful of soda dissolve in one-half cup of hot water, one tablespoonful of molasses, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one well beaten egg, one cup of milk, one cup of bran meal and one-half cups of graham meal. Bake in gem pans 25 minutes. This will make nine.

Cheese With Peppers.

Melt two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter in the chafin dish, add five tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, quarter cupful of cream of milk, seasoning of salt, pepper and paprika, and four well beaten eggs. Cook till thoroughly mixed and serve hot on buttered slices of toasted bread.

Ant Remedy.

Here is a sure remedy for the removal of the little ant pest: Remove paper from shelves, then wash them with hot water. Prepare some strong alum water and take a small paint brush and cover the shelves, cracks and corners a few times, and you will soon be free from them.

100 YEARS OLD.

Grandma Sanderson, of DeWitt, Mo., Has Lived a Long and Useful Life.

Grandma Sanderson is a wonderful woman. She is in as good health today as ever in her life, although she is over one hundred years old.

In a letter to the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., she gives the highest credit to Peruna for her excellent health and extreme old age. Read what she says.

Surely the evidence presented by such cases as these ought not only to dispel prejudice against Peruna, but inspire confidence in it.

"I will send you a picture that was taken a few weeks before my hundredth birthday.

"I am a true friend of the Peruna Company. I have derived great benefit from Peruna many times. I can say I regard Peruna a very great medicine. I found out the merit of it a good many years ago.

"A little more than two years ago I contracted a very severe cold, which resulted in la grippe. Owing to the severity of the disease, and my extreme age, my case was considered to be very critical. I employed no doctor, but Peruna was the remedy I used, and to-day my health is as good as it ever was in my life.

"However, I still continue to take Peruna, a spoonful every night before retiring."

Peruna is an ideal tonic for old people. It is a compound of herbal remedies that has been known to the medical profession for many years.

Peruna operates as a tonic by cleansing and invigorating the mucous membranes. This explains why Peruna has become so extensively known as a catarrh remedy. Catarrh is simply a condition of depraved mucous membranes. Peruna changes this depravity into healthful vigor.

A great many old people use Peruna, and would not be deprived of it for any consideration.

People who object to liquid medicine can now secure Peruna tablets.

Pictures on Damp Walls.
Take as many corks as are required, cut them in two and pass a short pin through each piece, so that the point protrudes at the other end. Fix one piece on each of the two lower back corners of your picture frames. This prevents the pictures, when hung from touching the walls and permits a current of air to pass unimpededly between, carrying off all damp and moisture that would otherwise be absorbed by the pictures.

THEY LEARN BY EXPERIENCE

Data Collected by German Naturalist Show That Animals Often Become Wiser Than Their Parents.

A German naturalist has been collecting data to show that animals learn by experience, and thus, in some instances, become wiser than their uninstructed parents.

Game animals of all kinds, it appears, have learned the range of modern rifles. Greyhounds quickly learn to let rabbits alone, and foxhounds pay no attention to either rabbits or hares. Killer whales and gulls follow whaling vessels, just as vultures follow an army. Crows begin to accompany the clamor hunter as soon as they have seen the result of his first successful shot, and rough-legged buzzards follow the sportsmen after winged game.

The number of birds that kill or injure themselves by flying against telegraph wires is much smaller than it used to be. The fact is also brought out that birds and quadrupeds have learned to disregard passing railway trains, as horses quickly came to be frightened by automobiles. Instances of the intelligent selection exercised by sheep dogs are familiar to all.

'Twas Ever Thus.
A Kansas woman wants a divorce because her husband throws bricks at her. No man has a right to throw anything at his wife but bonnets and hot air.

GAS, DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION AND ALL OTHER STOMACH MISERY GOES

Take a little Diapiesin now and your stomach will feel fine five minutes later.

If your meals don't sit comfortably, or you feel bloated after eating, and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, indigested food and acid; heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something to stop food fermentation and cure indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your stomach of gas, which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Griping, etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapiesin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking a single dose that fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Constipation, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapiesin will regulate any out-of-order Stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly without any food or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.

The Famous Rayo
Does Not Strain the Eyes.

Don't use a small, concentrated light over one shoulder. It puts an unequal strain on your eyes. Use a diffused, soft, mellow light that cannot flicker, that equalizes the work of the eyes, such as the Rayo Lamp gives, and avoid eye strain.

The Rayo is designed to give the best light, and it does.

It has a strong, durable shade-holder that is held firm and true. A new burner gives added strength. Made of solid brass and finished in nickel. Easy to keep polished. The Rayo is low priced, but no other lamp gives a better light at any price.

Once a Rayo User, Always One.

Dealers Everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the Standard Oil Company.

A "FIBREX" TUB IS ALWAYS NEW

The best thing about the wonderful Fibrex ware is that it's just as good after years of hard service as it was when new.

Though Fibrex is the lightest ware made it is more reliable than galvanized iron. It can't leak, and there's nothing about it to rust. It never gets soggy or falls to pieces like a wooden tub.

And it's always sweet and wholesome; for it can't absorb odors, and there's not a crack or joint to catch dirt and germs. It's cleaned in an instant.

Try one and prove it.

Some Marksmanship.
Probably the most famous shot at woodcock ever made was that which Chantrey, the sculptor, brought off, quite by accident, it is said. By great good fortune a couple of woodcock rose simultaneously and happening to cross at the moment that Chantrey pulled the trigger both were brought down by the single shot. This remarkable performance was immortalized in imperishable marble.

Salvationists. Planning for Christmas Dinner

CHRISTMAS DINNER FOR THE POOR.

The Salvation Army Capt. of Janesville, asks the people through the press, not to forget that he wants them to help him to give sixty poor families, the best Christmas dinner ever given in this city, and for every body to wake up to the fact that Christmas is just now at our heels, he wants everybody to give something for the Christmas and winter relief, such as money, food, clothing, toys, etc. If you have nothing you can spare, then you may offer your services to ring the Army bell at the street corner where the collecting bottles will be stationed.

Let every one do something to make glad the hearts and homes of those in need, or less fortunate than ourselves. Checks and money orders may be made payable to the Salvation Army and sent to Capt. R. A. Fleming, 101 N. Main St., City, and he will do his best to make others happy. (Both phones.)

Pinning Him Down.
"You can't spring that old gag on me," said the young wife, as her husband made a wry face over his piece of pie, "because I will remember you used to say you liked to stay over to our house to tea because your mother was such a bum pastry cook!"

Why She Sues.
In Pittsburg a woman is suing for divorce because her husband has not had a bath for six months. Pittsburg is a particularly bad place in which to go unattended for so long.

Ferruginous Statistics.
The average human being carries a pound of iron in his system, and it costs a little more to keep it there than it used to cost.

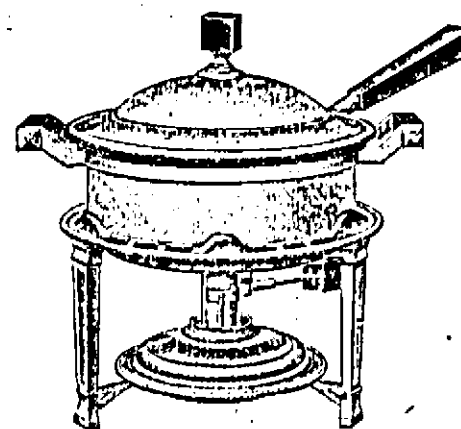

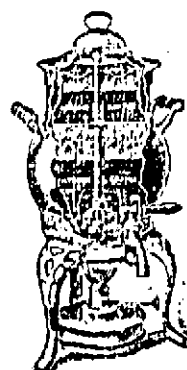

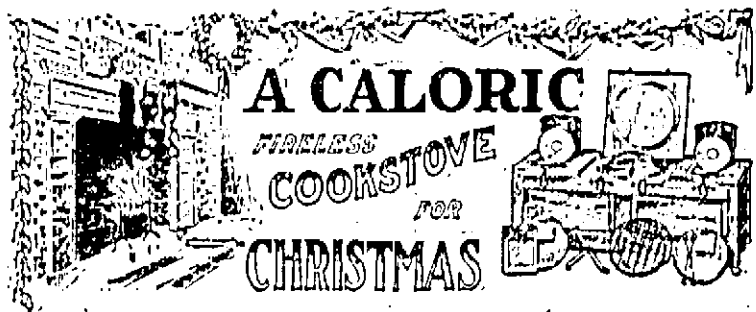

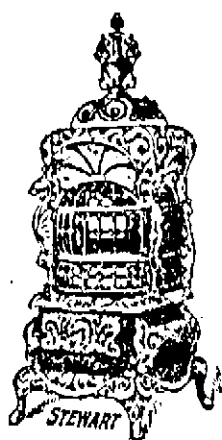

Of Art.
Artists may produce excellent designs, but they will avail little unless the taste of the public is sufficiently cultivated to appreciate them.—George C. Mason.

Get Out of Bed.
Rise early in the morning, not only to avoid self-reproach but to make the most of that little life that remains; not only to save the hours lost in sleep, but to avoid that languor which is spread over mind and body for the whole of that day in which you have lain late in bed.—Sidney Smith.

A Fortune.
There is a fortune in it for the man or woman who can invent a woman's hat that can be worn so that every time she tries it on she won't have to say: "Of course it doesn't look well just now. My hair isn't dressed the way it should be for this hat."

Depressing.
We met the Early Bird and were amazed on glancing at our watches to discover that the hour of seven had long since struck. "You're not so early, after all," we remarked, significantly. "No," assented the Early Bird, looking very conscious all at once. "The fact is, I got the hook worm."—Puck.

Justice Betrayed.
"My poor friend Jones, died the other day," says the Philosopher of Folly, "and in spite of evidence that showed he had recently married a graduate of a cooking school, the coronor's jury brought in a verdict of natural death."
